

Op-Eds & Letters to the Editor

Below are details on how to place an op-ed or letter to the editor in the top 100+ newspapers in the United States by circulation:

1. USA Today

Op-Eds: 600-800 words. Fact-based approach. Include background information-qualifications for writing about subject, basic contact information. E-mail the Forum Page Editor at theforum@usatoday.com (No attachments).

Letters: 250 words or less. Include name, address, phone, and submit online at asp?type=18 or e-mail editor@usatoday.com.

2. Wall Street Journal

Op-Eds: 600-1200 words, double-spaced. Must be strong argument about issue in news, not response to Journal article. Exclusive use of your article is required and the paper reserves 10 working days to keep it under consideration. Include cover letter, name, address, phone, fax, e-mail. E-mail edit.features@wsj.com or fax 212/416-2255.

Go to opinionjournal.com/guidelines/ for more information.

Letters: 300 word limit, must relate to story or editorial in WSJ--include date, headline and page number of article, city where writer is located. E-mail wsj.ltrs@wsj.com or fax 212/416-2255.

3. New York Times

Op-Eds: Suggested length is 650 words, but articles of any length will be considered. The Times will respond within one week if the op-ed is to be published. Cannot return unused submissions. Op-eds can be on any topic, but not a response to Times article. Please include name, title, phone number, and address. Op-eds can be e-mailed (in body of e-mail) or faxed. Fax: 212/556-4100, E-mail oped@nytimes.com or The Op-Ed Page, 229 W. 43 rd St., New York, NY 10036.

For further guidelines go to nytimes.com/ref/membercenter/help/opedsubmit.html or call for recorded instructions: 212/556-1831.

Letters: 150 words or less, exclusive to Times, refer to article within past 7 days, include author's phone numbers, address e-mail to letters@nytimes.com or Letters to the Editor/ The New York Times, 229 W. 43 rd St., New York, NY 10036. Fax: 212/556-3622.

4. Washington Post

Op-Eds: Submissions are received via their web form at <http://projects.washingtonpost.com/opeds/submit/> only. Op-eds must be 600-800 words and must be submitted exclusively to The Washington Post. Exclusive op-ed submissions will be reviewed by an editor within six business days. Non-exclusive submissions are not reviewed; with close to a hundred exclusive submissions coming in each day, there simply is not time to consider non-exclusive submissions as well.

Because there are countless factors that might affect whether an op-ed works for their page, they are not able to provide any guidance on op-ed ideas or proposals. The newspaper needs to see full text of the op-ed before determining whether they might be interested in publishing it. Authors' requests for anonymity cannot be honored and the use of pseudonyms is not permitted. If the author has particular expertise in the subject of the op-ed, or if there are multiple authors, please elaborate in the comments field. There are no minimum author credentials required in order for submissions to be considered.

All op-eds should be submitted using the web form as submissions by any other method is not guaranteed to be reviewed. Please type or paste your op-ed into the form as plain text, not HTML. (No brackets, please.)

Authors of declined submissions are notified by e-mail of the decision; however, due to the high volume of submissions, only authors of accepted op-eds can be guaranteed to be contacted. No calls, please. Authors should understand that accepted pieces often are not published right away. The time between acceptance and publication varies depending on the time sensitivity of the piece and available space on the op-ed page.

Letters: Letters must be exclusive to The Washington Post, and must include the writer's home address and home and business telephone numbers. (Letters via regular mail should also be signed.) Because of space limitations, those published are subject to abridgment. Although we are unable to acknowledge those letters we cannot publish, we appreciate the interest and value the views of those who take the time to send us their comments.

Send e-mail letters to letters@washpost.com. Do not send attachments; they will not be read. Letters can also be sent to: Letters to the Editor, The Washington Post, 1150 15th Street Northwest, Washington, DC 20071.

5. Los Angeles Times

Op-Eds: 700 word limit. Exclusive use required. Please give the newspaper 5 days to consider the submission. Manuscripts cannot be returned unless accompanied by a self-addressed, stamped envelope. Submit by e-mail at op-ed@latimes.com or fax: Nicholas Goldberg, 213/237-7968. Call 213/237-2121 for complete submission information.

Letters: 250 words or less, must include mailing address, phone number, signature. Letters must be written in plain text without attachments. E-mail letters@latimes.com. Call 800/LATIMES ext. 74511 for more information.

6. Christian Science Monitor (Boston, MA)

Op-Eds: Prefer less than 750 words; more than 1,200 words risks being disqualified purely out of lack of staff time to edit it. Exclusive use required; if chosen, you will be called to verify, and you will be included in the editing process. If you haven't heard back within 48 hours for articles pegged to news events, or within 2 weeks for articles without a news peg, feel free to submit your piece elsewhere. Submit to Clara Germani online at csmonitor.com/cgi-bin/encryptmail.pl?ID=B2B0B0B4B0B1B0B8B1B1B5B9B5B6, or via fax to 617/450-2317. Prefer completed submissions rather than queries.

For further guidelines, go to csmonitor.com/aboutus/guidelines.html.

Letters: 200 words or less, include your first and last name, city and state, and telephone number. All letters to be published are subject to editing/condensing. Submit online at csmonitor.com/cgi-bin/encryptmail.pl?ID=CFF0C5E4.

7. Philadelphia Inquirer (PA)

Op-Eds: approx. 700 words, include phone number, mailing address. Submissions by e-mail: oped@phillynews.com, or by mail: Commentary Page Editor, Philadelphia Inquirer, Box 41705, Philadelphia, PA 19101 or fax: 215/854-5884.

Letters: approx. 200 words, same contact information as above. If about specific regional issue, refer to inquirer.philly.com/opinion/edweb_e-mailaddresses.asp for more detailed information.
